FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

ENTERPRISE WEB 2.0 SEARCH

Context based indexed search for qEnterprise

Munich 27th August 2008 – Qnoodle limited have extended qEnterprise by adding context based indexed search to their flagship product.

With the qEnterprise web based software application, you search for documents, blogs, comments, attachments and profiles in a Google-like manner across the company intranet and extranet. Furthermore, qEnterprise search not only helps you to find the information you require, but provides contextual information on who created the content, why they created it and how it was used.

Chaitanya Mistry, Managing Director of Qnoodle Limited notes “Companies have a wealth of information that is hidden on various personal computers, servers and in other corners of their organization. Employees have difficulty in finding this information. Even if they are lucky enough to find it, they are not sure that this is the latest information, or importantly, why it was created. Now with qEnterprise you can find what you need in seconds and see the context of why it was created”.

qEnterprise with indexed search provides an all-in-one solution for dynamic intranets and extranets. Unique alerting and bookmarking of blogs, comments, documents and attachments makes collaboration and communication simple and effective.

A 60 day free trial of the full qEnterprise product, is available immediately. The standard product includes blog module, security, alerts and bookmark notifications, comments, messaging, document store, attachments, text editor, tags, profiles and a multilingual interface. Out of the box support for thousands of users is standard and easily served by low-cost Linux based hardware.

Qnoodle Limited is a European Web 2.0 specialist based in and operating out of Munich, Germany delivering data-driven, interactive web projects. Founded in 2006, Qnoodle Limited has delivered a number of Web 2.0 communities and interactive sites.
